SCP-7672

Object Class: Keter

Special Containment Procedures:

SCP-7672 is contained within a standard containment chamber at Site-[redacted]. The room appears to be a normal teenage bedroom, with green-painted walls, various personal items, and a window located on the side. The primary anomaly is located within the window. It must be kept locked at all times, and the room should be monitored remotely via high-definition surveillance cameras for any signs of activity. No personnel are permitted to enter SCP-7672 without prior authorization from Site Command.

Picture of SCP-7672

Should the window be opened for experimentation or exploration, all personnel involved must wear 2-inch thick protective suits made of leather and fabric, with plastic goggles to prevent exposure to SCP-7672-1 (the lethal sunlight).

Under no circumstances should the window remain open for more than 50 minutes, as doing so will result in the activation of SCP-7672-3 (The Boy). Any personnel within a 3-meter radius of SCP-7672-3 when it becomes active will be instantly disintegrated. This event triggers extreme difficulty in recontainment, and it will require significant resources and time to prevent further breaches. Exploration of SCP-7672-2 is restricted to Class-D personnel only. Class-D personnel are required to be supervised at all times and must follow the strictest containment protocols. Any attempt to open the window or explore SCP-7672-2 without proper oversight will result in immediate termination of the exploration, and personnel will be held responsible for any containment breaches.

Due to the dangers posed by SCP-7672-3, special precautions must be taken to minimize the risk of accidental exposure or activation. If SCP-7672-3 is activated, recontainment is extremely difficult and will require additional resources.

Description:

SCP-7672 is an anomalous room resembling an ordinary teenage bedroom. The walls are painted green, and the room is filled with typical teenage items, such as posters, clothing, books, and other personal objects. The primary anomaly within SCP-7672 lies in a window located on one side of the room. When this window is opened and exposed to sunlight, it activates SCP-7672-1, a lethal and anomalous form of sunlight that disintegrates all living matter within a specific radius. The light operates similarly to a black hole, destroying all atomic and molecular bonds in its area of effect.

SCP-7672-1 poses an imminent threat to anyone in proximity to the window. Only by wearing the proper protective gear (2-inch thick leather suits and plastic goggles) can personnel avoid being disintegrated. The window serves as the primary gateway to the alternate dimension, SCP-7672-2, when opened.

Once the window is opened and SCP-7672-1 is triggered, it leads to the formation of SCP-7672-2, an anomalous, infinite British suburban neighborhood that distorts the laws of space and time. This neighborhood is both dangerous and disorienting, and its exploration should be approached with extreme caution.

Entities Within SCP-7672-2:

- SCP-7672-3 (The Boy):
  A small child who continuously calls for his "mummy." Anyone who approaches the boy within a 3-meter radius will be instantly disintegrated, similar to the effects of SCP-7672-1. The boy is extremely dangerous, and no contact should be made under any circumstances.

- SCP-7672-4 (The Moving Trees):
  Most of the trees in SCP-7672-2 behave as normal trees, but a small number of trees randomly move without warning. Although they are not inherently dangerous, their movements are unpredictable and can create an unsettling atmosphere.

- SCP-7672-5 (The Humanoid Predator):
  Between 04:00 and 11:45, a humanoid predator appears in SCP-7672-2. It is invisible, but once it locks on to a target, it will pursue them relentlessly at speeds of 78 mph, phasing through walls and obstacles. It will not stop until its target is caught or killed. This predator cannot be contained except with Thaumiel-class SCPs or by escaping SCP-7672-2.

Sublevels:

- SCP-7672-7 (The Gated Estate):
  This is a high-class, gated estate within SCP-7672-2. The atmosphere is oppressive, with thick fog obscuring vision. The houses here are decaying, and the air feels heavy and unnatural. Entities here are more hostile, and approaching any of them will result in immediate disintegration due to the abnormal nature of the area.

- SCP-7672-8 (The Decayed Suburb):
  SCP-7672-8 is a ruined version of the original suburban neighborhood. The sky is always grey, and ash rain falls from the sky, causing severe hallucinations. The environment induces feelings of mental instability, and prolonged exposure causes complete psychological breakdowns.

SCP-7672-6 (The Apollyon Entity):

SCP-7672-6 is an Apollyon-Class entity, meaning its existence signals the end of all reality. It is an invisible, formless being that defies all known principles of physics. It remains undetectable until the moment it is found, and once discovered, it triggers the imminent collapse of all dimensions. SCP-7672-6 cannot be contained or stopped in any way.

Upon the discovery of SCP-7672-6, all known realities will begin to collapse. Escape from SCP-7672 will be impossible, and the collapse will affect multiple dimensions at once.

Containment Breach Protocols:

- SCP-7672-1 (Lethal Sunlight):
  In the event of exposure to SCP-7672-1, immediate evacuation is required. Personnel affected by the sunlight are irrecoverable, and no recovery attempts should be made.

- SCP-7672-5 (The Humanoid Predator):
  If SCP-7672-5 becomes active, all personnel must evacuate immediately. If any target has been locked onto, they must be abandoned and the evacuation process should be prioritized. Containment can only be achieved using Thaumiel-class SCPs or by escape from SCP-7672-2.

- SCP-7672-6 (The Apollyon Entity):
  Discovery of SCP-7672-6 is a critical event. Once it is found, reality begins to collapse, and escape is impossible. Personnel should avoid searching for SCP-7672-6, as it will inevitably lead to the end of all dimensions.

- SCP-7672-3 (The Boy):
  If SCP-7672-3 becomes active, all personnel must evacuate immediately. The boy's presence will result in instant disintegration of anyone within a 3-meter radius. Recontainment of SCP-7672-3 is extremely difficult once it is triggered, and re-entry into SCP-7672-2 will be prohibited until it is secured.

Rules and Guidelines:

- No Exploration:
  Personnel must not enter SCP-7672 unless explicitly authorized and under extreme oversight. Unauthorized exploration will result in immediate termination of the exploration and severe consequences.

- Proper Protective Gear:
  Protective gear consisting of 2-inch thick leather suits and plastic goggles must be worn by any personnel who open the window or enter SCP-7672-2 for experimentation or exploration.

- No Prolonged Exposure to SCP-7672-1:
  Under no circumstances should the window be left open for more than 50 minutes, as doing so will activate SCP-7672-3 and result in instant disintegration for anyone within a 3-meter radius.

- Do Not Appoach SCP-7672-3 (The Boy):
  Any attempt to interact with SCP-7672-3 will result in instant disintegration. No personnel are to approach the boy or attempt any form of communication with it.

- Avoid SCP-7672-5 (The Humanoid Predator):
  If SCP-7672-5 is encountered, personnel must immediately evade the creature and escape SCP-7672-2. There is no known method of containing SCP-7672-5 without the use of Thaumiel-class SCPs.

- SCP-7672-6 (The Apollyon Entity):
  Discovery of SCP-7672-6 is a critical event. Once it is found, reality begins to collapse, and escape is impossible. Personnel should avoid searching for SCP-7672-6, as it will inevitably lead to the end of all dimensions.

Final Notes from O5 Council:

"The only way to be truly safe from SCP-7672 is to never explore it. Its dangers are beyond our understanding, and the consequences of breaching its boundaries are catastrophic beyond measure.